

Ex 3.2.22: Prove that if a node in a BST has two children, its successor has no left child and its predecessor has no right child.

Solution:

For any node, its successor will be leftmost element of its right child. Therefore, this node cannot have a left-child as that is the leftmost-element of its right child.

For any node, predecessor will be rightmost element of its left child.